Evaluation programme 2023-2024

Evaluation is an important instrument for an effective development policy. While different parts of the Norwegian development aid administration are responsible for reporting the results of individual aid interventions, the Evaluation Department has a particular responsibility for documenting the degree to which Norwegian development assistance is effective, relevant, and achieves the expected results. The knowledge acquired through the evaluations will help increase learning and improve aid.

The evaluation programme from the Department for Evaluation is updated every year. This programme covers the years 2023 and 2024. Some of the evaluations in the 2022–2024 programme have been completed, while new ones have been added or started. An overview of the changes follows on page 13.

The Department for Evaluation is an independent department within Norad, and the evaluations are carried out independently of those who have administrative responsibility. The department is governed under a separate mandate and reports directly to the Secretaries General of the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Norwegian Ministry of Climate and Environment.

The evaluation programme has been put together in consultation with actors both inside and outside the development aid administration. The evaluations have been selected based on an assessment of the significance, uniqueness and risk of Norway's development cooperation, as well as an assessment of the issues that are considered to be relevant during the period covered by the programme.

The programme and the status of planned and ongoing evaluations can be found on our webpages at www.norad.no/en/front/evaluation/.

Climate, environment, and food security

Evaluation of support to civil society by Norway's International Climate and Forest Initiative

Norway's International Climate and Forest Initiative (NICFI) provides support to civil society organisations through several grant agreements administered by Norad, the embassies and the Ministry of Climate and Environment. A wide range of organisations receive support, from local indigenous organisations to international organisations. The evaluation will initially look at Norad's management of the support for civil society. This will be followed by an evaluation of the effects of civil society support, focusing on support for indigenous peoples and local communities.

Ongoing

Evaluation of the sustainability of Norwegian food security aid

The fight against hunger and support for food security is and has been a priority area in Norwegian development cooperation for many years. The evaluation will include several studies and evaluations that will assess the extent to which this support contributes to lasting access to sufficient and safe food, and whether the aid has been and continues to be sustainable. The purpose of the evaluation is to generate knowledge that can be used to further develop Norwegian support for food security.

Ongoing

Evaluation of Norfund's investments in renewable energy

Norfund is the Norwegian government's investment fund for businesses in developing countries and is intended to provide equity and other risk capital, as well as loans and guarantees, in order to create jobs and help improve living conditions by investing in businesses that promote sustainable development. Norfund invests in renewable energy to give businesses and households in developing countries increased access to electricity. Norfund also manages the Norwegian Climate Investment Fund for renewable energy in developing countries (the Climate Investment Fund), which aims to help reduce or avoid greenhouse gas emissions. The purpose of the evaluation is to assess how Norfund operationalises the two mandates in practice and has achieved its objectives.

Planned start-up in 2024

Evaluation of support for increased transparency in land use, supply chains and financing through Norway's International Climate and Forest Initiative

Good and reliable access to relevant data, as well as systems and institutions for consistent monitoring and reporting, are important prerequisites for sustainable land use in tropical rainforest countries and reduced pressure on rainforests from the market. The evaluation will assess efforts made to improve access to data on forests, deforestation, and forest degradation. The evaluation will map the support provided, obtain experience from ongoing and completed projects and assess these efforts against the performance goal of transparency and the main objectives of Norway's International Climate and Forest Initiative. The purpose of the evaluation is to provide knowledge that can contribute to further developing future efforts in this area.

Planned start-up in 2024

Evaluation of Norway's work on climate change adaptation

At the climate summit in Glasgow (COP26) in November 2021, Norway pledged to double its climate finance to developing countries by 2026. This includes a pledge to at least triple the support for climate change adaptation. The evaluation will examine how Norway's aid administration follows up on this objective. One of the deliverables will be to investigate what results Norway has achieved with regard to climate change adaptation over the past ten years.

Planned start-up in 2024

Rights and inclusion

Evaluation of cross-cutting issues in Norwegian development cooperation

In order for Norwegian development aid to contribute to sustainable development, it is considered crucial for cross-cutting issues relating to human rights, women's rights and gender equality, climate and the environment as well as anti-corruption to be integrated. The aim of the evaluation is to contribute knowledge that can be used to strengthen the integration of the cross-cutting issues in Norwegian development cooperation. Part of the evaluation will look more closely at how human rights issues are integrated into selected projects in one country.

Planned start-up in 2023

Synthesis study of support for civil society organisations

Norway is committed to locally led development. This study will systematise and elaborate on findings from previous evaluations that may be relevant for Norway's current and future contribution to strengthening the role of civil society organisations in locally led development.

Planned start-up in 2024

Humanitarian aid, conflict and peace efforts

Evaluation of Norwegian efforts in the Sahel

Norway is implementing its second strategy in the Sahel (2021-2025) and contributes to funds for development, humanitarian aid and stabilisation. The security situation in the Sahel is unstable and engagement must be constantly adapted. The purpose of the evaluation is to provide input on how Norway can adapt its involvement in a fragile and unstable context.

This evaluation is part of a series of evaluations of Norwegian efforts in fragile states. So far, there have been carried out evaluations of Norway's involvement in South Sudan in the period 2011–2018 and Somalia in the period 2012–2018. Both individually and collectively, these evaluations can provide useful insight into Norway's involvement in fragile states.

Ongoing

Evaluation of the interaction between humanitarian aid, development cooperation and peace efforts

The evaluation will look into the relationship between Norwegian humanitarian aid, long-term development cooperation and peacebuilding. It will place emphasis on mapping and analysing this interplay at country level and drawing lessons to develop a holistic Norwegian effort.

Ongoing

Synthesis study of peace efforts

Promoting peace and preventing conflict play a central role in Norwegian development policy. This study will synthesise and elaborate on findings from previous evaluations of peace efforts that are relevant to Norway's current and future contributions to preventing, reducing, and resolving conflicts.

Planned start-up in 2024

Synthesis study of work for protection against sexual and gender-based violence

Sexual and gender-based violence represents a major challenge in humanitarian crises. This study will systematise and elaborate on findings from previous evaluations that may be relevant for Norway's current and future work against sexual and gender-based violence.

Planned start-up in 2024

Results and management of Norwegian development cooperation

Evaluation of Norad's approach to knowledge-based portfolio management

In Norad's new strategy towards 2030, more strategic use of knowledge is a separate development area. Norad has also devoted considerable resources to improving the portfolio management of development assistance. This evaluation will look at Norad's use of knowledge in portfolio management. The purpose of the evaluation is to assess Norad's approach to knowledge-based portfolio management and provide knowledge that can be used to strengthen the implementation of Norad's strategy in this field.

Planned start-up in 2023

Study: Assessment of quality of decentralised evaluations in Norwegian aid management

The Department for Evaluation will follow up previous studies of decentralised evaluations published in 2017, 2020 and 2021, which found that the quality of these evaluations was weak. Decentralised evaluations are evaluations that are commissioned and carried out by those who manage grants in the aid administration. The purpose of the study is to strengthen the quality and use of decentralised evaluations in grant management.

Planned start-up in 2024

Good measures and achievement of results in completed aid projects

This evaluation will investigate whether recently completed aid projects can document good results, and whether projects with good project attainment have any common features. This can contribute to learning about which measures in the Norwegian Development Aid Administration can contribute to good results. The study will review documentation from Norad's archive of all projects completed in 2022. The study can form a baseline for follow-up studies of completed projects for later years.

Planned start-up in 2023

Multilateral support

Financial flows, coordination and efficiency at the UN: Evaluation of the "Funding Compact" at the country level

Member states finance the UN system through core support and earmarked funds. The majority of the funding is done through earmarked funds. Skewed distribution in favour of earmarked funds is considered to place restrictions on the UN's opportunity for strategic and long-term planning of programme activities, ensuring competence and capacity and implementing reforms; factors that are particularly important for following up the 2030 Agenda. In order to ensure more predictable and flexible funding of the UN system and strengthened coordination between UN organisations, member states and the UN Sustainable Development Group agreed in 2019 on a funding agreement called the "Funding Compact". The evaluation will look at the experiences and results of the implementation of this financing agreement at country level, among other things.

Planned start-up in 2023

Evaluation of contributions through multilateral funds

Contributions through multilateral funds constitute an increasing share of the Nordic countries' development cooperation. The evaluation will assess the total Nordic support in selected funds and provide advice on how this support can be strengthened. The evaluation will be carried out in cooperation with other Nordic countries.

Planned start-up in 2023

Other evaluations

Evaluation of selected knowledge programmes

Knowledge programmes in Norwegian aid management are developed through long-term cooperation between Norwegian public institutions and similar institutions in Norwegian partner countries. The purpose of the knowledge programmes is to strengthen the competence and capacity of public institutions in partner countries in areas where Norwegian expertise and experience are in demand. The knowledge programmes are currently managed by the Knowledge Bank in Norad. The Department for Evaluation will carry out evaluations of selected knowledge programmes that can provide insight into the ongoing work, to further develop these. The evaluations will both identify the results of the effort and assess the achievement of goals.

In 2022, an evaluation of the Fish for Development Programme focusing on fisheries aid through the Nansen Programme was completed. A new evaluation associated with the Knowledge Bank's programmes will be considered for start-up in the new three-year programme for 2025–2027.

Synthesis study of corruption management

Norway will contribute significant aid funds to Ukraine over the coming years. It is well documented that Ukraine faces major challenges with regard to corruption in both the public administration and civil society. There is therefore a need to learn more about how the Norwegian development aid administration can help manage the risk of corruption in development aid work. The study will build on previous evaluations and other relevant knowledge work. The synthesis study is planned as a collaboration with Norad's Department for Knowledge. Ukraine will be a focus area for the Department for evaluation in the coming years.

Planned start-up in 2023

What has changed since last year's evaluation programme?

Completed reports

Evaluation of efforts to include persons with disabilities in Norwegian development cooperation

Evaluation of Norway's fisheries support through the Nansen Programme

Real-time evaluation of the UN Fund for the management of COVID-19 in cooperation with the Office of the UN Secretary-General

Removed from the programme

A synthesis study of how environmental considerations are safeguarded in Norwegian Business-related Assistance has been removed from the programme, because the topic is partly covered by an evaluation of Norfund's investments in renewable energy. We have also reduced the level of priority afforded to an evaluation of support for COVID-19 vaccines, as the need is now less and the issue is in any case being addressed by the OECD coalition evaluating the coherence of Member States' response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Deferred

The start of the evaluation of support for greater transparency in land use, supply chains and financing through the Climate and Forest Initiative has been postponed until 2024 due to delays in the ongoing evaluation of the initiative's civil society support.
